A Briefing Guide to

E-Discovery

RAHMAN RAVELLI

E-Discovery

Providing the very best in client representation and care is one of Rahman Ravelli's core principles.

We achieve this through our skill, experience and awareness of the many factors that make up the modern-day legal case. It is this awareness that is at the heart of the approach we take to e-discovery: an approach that brings our people and state-of-the-art technology together to ensure that every single aspect of a client's case is handled with the utmost diligence, attention and care.

Our vast expertise in the fields in which we operate, our intelligent use of the latest technical advances and our document review skills inform every aspect of our e-discovery service. We believe that our data management capability plus our internationally-acknowledged legal prowess put us at the cutting edge when it comes to e-discovery.

Working for corporates, financial institutions and major organisations, our e-discovery ability is used in internal investigations, conduct reviews and inquiries and the carrying out of due diligence. It is in regular demand for the management of evidence in civil, regulatory and enforcement cases and to facilitate any necessary updates or regulatory changes that a client may require

Our e-discovery teams can be put to use in all types of investigation, commercial litigation and compliance situations. We often work in conjunction with in-house counsel to ensure our services are a tailored fit for the client.

At Rahman Ravelli, we see our purpose as saving clients' time and money by analysing and reviewing the largest, most complex amounts of data in the most efficient, cost-effective manner. We then advise on the very best approach to take and / or build the most robust case possible.

Business in the 21st century can be complex. We use our innovative, systematic approach to keep it as simple as possible for you.
